Other software designed for drafting and diagramming includes AutoCAD LT, DraftSight, Cadalyst, and Autodesk Inventor. AutoCAD designations are usually abbreviated as ACAD, CAD, or DIA. In 2013, nearly 57 percent of CAD users were running AutoCAD and 21 percent were running AutoCAD LT; the remaining 22 percent were using AutoCAD LT on the desktop. Approximately 90 percent of all AutoCAD customers have more than one computer. AutoCAD had over 1,000,000 paid installations at the end of 2013. History AutoCAD In 1992, Autodesk released AutoCAD (automated drafting) as a desktop computer-aided design (CAD) application. AutoCAD was first released on personal computers (PCs) in December 1982. Before the introduction of AutoCAD, most CAD software ran on large mainframe or minicomputers, with each CAD operator working at a separate graphics terminal. AutoCAD was developed to be a single CAD operator tool on a single PC, eliminating the need for multiple terminals. AutoCAD was initially designed for the Apple II, but is available for multiple platforms, including DOS, Windows, Linux, Unix, and macOS. AutoCAD was initially bundled with the Autodesk Graphics Suite, a set of drawing, animation, and imaging tools, that included DesignCenter, Reality Studio, and Softimage. In 2004, the Autodesk Graphics Suite was sold separately. DesignCenter and Reality Studio were replaced with AutoCAD Map 3D and AutoCAD Land Desktop in 2012. AutoCAD LT In 1992, Autodesk introduced AutoCAD LT (automated technical drawings). AutoCAD LT is a lighter version of AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT is targeted at medium-sized businesses with a need for simple technical drafting and rendering. Draftsight Autodesk developed the first commercially viable optical character recognition (OCR) tool in 1993. Autodesk acquired DraftSight in 1996. DraftSight is a desktop app that reads drawings and 2D scanned images in standard file formats and can convert them into 3D models. Autodesk Inventor Autodesk Inventor (2013 version) is a 3D computer-aided design (CAD) and technical drawing software that is similar to AutoCAD but provides more

API tools Since the release of AutoCAD version 2011, new applications can be developed without having to learn the underlying language. Tools such as the command-line utility Molokai include many of AutoCAD's features in a single tool. While this is still a useful and powerful tool, it is not the preferred method of developing applications. With the recent release of AutoCAD 2013, we are starting to see programmers move away from this method of application development, in favor of creating interactive or script based applications. The command line tool Molokai can be replaced with an interactive script tool called AutoLISP, which interfaces directly with the API. Pre-build libraries Although the command line has always been the preferred interface for programming AutoCAD, the ability to create AutoCAD application using a GUI has greatly increased the demand for GUI builders. AutoCAD has two such libraries. The AutoCAD Server product provides a set of tools for programmers to create interactive applications. The Visual LISP product is a GUI builder, which provides the ability to create GUI's from AutoCAD applications. Posts And there it was. The realization that I have never before made my own mortar and pestle. (Maybe there was one in my head somewhere. I had just never been moved to try it. I love the sound of that, "my own mortar and pestle.") So I was faced with the obvious question, "What do I do now?" … Googling on my phone, I was able to find instructions on how to make one. I did it! It was a bit of a struggle to clean up the broken bits of the blender jar that was used to crush the gingersnap cookies… but it was a lot of fun and will be handy for years to come. I am on day two of our honeymoon. I thought my initial excitement about our trip would have waned by now. We are really getting to know one another and I think it's hitting us all hard. We are really getting to know one another and I think it's hitting us all hard. We have had fun each day since we left on our trip. In the mornings, we have gone to the poolside restaurant at the resort and shared a breakfast (which was great as it gave us a chance to chat) and then in the afternoons, we have just lounged around by the pool or have gone to the spa. We have had so much fun together … I have been on Facebook these past several days. My ex-boyfriend, whom I was previously "casually" in a relationship with, posted on Facebook that he would love to hook up with me. On day three of our trip, I received a text from him. That same night, I received a phone call from a … It all happened too fast. He called it quits two years ago. I thought I was over it. I thought I had moved on. I thought I had healed. The dream – the girl next door – the times we would meet at a local bar in a small town, or after the bar closed, when we were still inside. I knew him for less than a year, but it was the best year of my life. We were in a happy, healthy and stable relationship. We would stay in touch over Facebook
